Dear Sirs,

From one who has been put through the mill trying to get visitations to my children, I think the court should be putting more emphasis on enforcing visitation rights of non-custodial parents. In the eighties and nineties the court would do nothing to enforce my visitation rights in Macomb County. I always paid my full support on a timely basis, but my ex-wife did not cooperate with visitation. In spite of going to court dozens of times, the court would not take any action against her and this only encouraged her non-compliance, and this enabled her to effectively remove my children from their father's life --- who will pay that bill?

Sincerely,

Steven R. Allison
